REFLEXOLIERS

THERE is an oft-repeated statement that the same study and skill is not devoted to the production of gas fixtures as is given to electric.

Even the most cursory glance at the illustrations in this booklet will be convincing as to the artistry and beauty that obtain in the designing of straight gas fixtures—and proves that the manufacturer is most anxious to give the same skill, energy and artistic effort in behalf of the gas man as he would to the electric. And his efforts toward the making of the truly artistic gas fixture received its inspiration and its impetus in the "Reflex" Inverted Lamp, for it made possible the fixtures illustrated in this booklet.

QUALITY

Do not confound these fixtures with the ordinary cheap conventional stuff. The highest grade materials and workmanship are used throughout their construction—and good material and good workmanship are worth good money. The finish, whether it be the standard brushed brass, or any of the many other finishes in which we supply them, is on a par with the workmanship.

DESIGN

Many of these fixtures are new, have never before been shown, and are exclusive with us for gas. We also show several new designs of chandeliers.

LIGHTING

The fixtures shown with the chain pull are equipped with the well-known Reflexolier Pilot Cock. By pulling one chain the lamps are lighted, and the other chain extinguishes. They can also be equipped with a central key, see cut V 464. While this is more artistic in design, it is not quite so convenient as the lever cock for, if hung high from the floor, it is necessary to use a taper torch for turning the gas on or off.

The three brackets shown are distinctly new, inasmuch as they are self-lighting without the use of the by-pass cock and chain. Simply turning the key either lights or extinguishes the lamps.

ADAPTABILITY

We believe that every one of these fixtures has some particular place where it will show to unusual advantage. For instance: Design V 502 is for high-grade store lighting; G 0439 for residence lighting. The latter, as well as three others on the same general lines, is a great step in advance in the art of gas lighting. A few years ago a fixture of this character was impossible for use with gas, but it is now made possible with the "Reflex" Lamp.

STOCK

It is noted, under each illustration, as to whether the fixture is carried in stock. It would be impracticable to carry all designs of so extensive and expensive a line as here illustrated. In fact, no manufacturer attempts to do this on either gas or electric designs.

It will be noted that the length of all fixtures is stated. Where lengths other than specified are required, they will be supplied as ordered at a slight additional charge.

GLASSWARE

The glassware illustrated on the various fixtures has been selected with the idea of artistically harmonizing with the fixture. In addition, we are illustrating eighteen new designs in shades and globes, from the best glass makers of Austria.
